The Glebe House, Glenkeen

In 1785, a few years after the erection of the Protestant Church in Borrisoleigh (which was located where St. Brigid's Cemetery is today), Glebe House was built as a residence for the Protestant Minister. After the execution of the Act of 1869 many local Protestant business families left the parish, while others joined the Catholic Church. The Protestant Church was closed and Glebe House was sold in 1870 to Martin Ryan, an ancestor of the present-day owners.
